ART EXHIBITION

AND THE

SCHOOL OF ART, 1874-1946

Of all the art exhibitions held in the Government School of Art, Calcutta, quite a number are not known to the public to-day. It is interesting to find on record that the School held two "Fine Art Exhibitions" as early as in 1874 and 1879 respectively at 161-64 Bowbazar Street where the School had been founded in 1865.

The Calcutta Art Gallery was founded in 1875-76 being strongly advocated by Sir Richard Temple, the then Governor of Bengal, with a view to provide a means of daily instruction and elevate the taste and ideas of the students of the Institution. Adequate extension to the School premises was made for the purpose with an annual grant of Rs. 10,000/-.

The School then moved to its present address in 1893-94, the site where the International Exhibition was held a few years previously.

It was here again that exclusive exhibitions of the works of the pupils of Dr. Abanindranath Tagore, (Vice-Principal) in Indian Style of Painting were held in 1908-09 & 10. It was just a modest beginning then which, however, later developed into the widely known institution of the Indian Society of Oriental Art.

1917 marks the beginning of a convention of holding exhibition of the works of students, ex-students and the staff of the School, for which the active sympathy of Messrs. Percy Brown, and J. P. Gangooly, the then Principal and Vice-Principal was responsible to a great extent.

Later, The Society of Fine Arts, a body organised mainly by some students who had recently passed from the School, proposed to hold an All-India Exhibition. The annual school exhibition was decided to merge with it, and 1921 saw for the first time an All-India Fine Arts Exhibition in Calcutta held here. It continued till 1928 when the exhibition was once again confined to the members of the school only. The present exhibition is thus the 23rd one in the series from 1917 onwards barring the few between 1921 and 1928 when these widened into All-India ones under the auspices of the Society of Fine Arts.

Exhibitions of pictures by individual artists and sponsored by private bodies have also been held here. Among a few outstanding ones, the following deserve mention:—

1. The first one-man-show of Srijut Jamini Roy in 1929.
2. The first exhibition of Art in Industry in 1941, sponsored by the Burmah Shell which has now developed into a separate institution known as the Indian Institute of Art in Industry.
3. A War-Fund exhibition in 1939-40.
4. The Academy of Fine Arts exhibition in 1944 and 1945.

It may be deduced from the above brief survey, that the School of Art has willingly borne its share in fostering and contributing towards various movements in art world here. It has not always been particularly easy to carry on the work of the School and have an exhibition running at the same time, but it has some how been managed and the School has not refused permission to hold exhibitions except on rare occasions only.

Such co-operation on the part of the School is a good foundation to build upon and to do so, the Exhibition Committee proposes to hold as many as individual and collective shows the whole year round to encourage and introduce the students of the School particularly, and young promising artists generally. It is fondly hoped that the structure so built will not only bring credit to the School, but will also elevate the standard of work and public taste at the same time.
